Contributions To Student Loan Are Over $650

Contributions of $653.85 have been made to the college loan fund this summer, according to a release from the office of Dr. Sterling Surrey, chairman of the student loan program.

Dr. Surrey points out that aid to students in the amount of $5,884.65 will be available since under the National Defense Loan Program the federal government will contribute $9 for every dollar set up in a local student loan program.

The loans are particularly advantageous to teachers, since part of the loan is forgiven if the recipient teaches a stated number of years.

Applications for loans may be made to Dr. Surrey's office. Contributions to the fund, tax deductible, also may be sent to his office.
